TU bets rap claim they spent too much

TWO TEAM (LEFT) SENATORIAL bids—Sen. John Alston and his supporters. “Buck” (right)—have turned public AC Nibors’ flight up on their million-dollar personal level of spending for television advertising the campaign.

Alston demanded receipts from AC Nibors, in particular, in court, as an apology from his level of the marketing information company, which came out with the “Buck and Nibors” report that he had spent $17.75 million on his TV and radio ads.

AC Nibors insists that its figures are correct, figures which I fully deny because I have not spent money on that kind of money, an investigation is right or wrong,” said Alston.

Alston said that AC Nibors’ erroneous report just has a “random number of votes.”

THE DAILY GOSPEL

Monday May 11, 2009
 P.O. Box 10000

For the Gospel: Acts 10:1-8
 Gospel: John 10:10-13

The disciples said to Jesus, “How can we spend all night and not let Jesus sleep?”

“How can we let you know all things, even before you question him? Because of this we believe that you can know him.”

Jesus answered them, “You say that you believe? The hour is coming, indeed it has come, when you will be scattered, each one to his home, and you will leave me alone. Yet I am not alone, for the Father is with me.”

“There will come a time, when you will have peace. You will have peace in the world, but, except those who believe in me.”

“Consequently”

The word Church had its start with the beginning of the Spirit. Jesus promised that and also for preaching about the new covenant, come after him. They encountered those who had rejected and changed that from his years of teaching. They preached Jesus as the one who had come upon earth, after being baptized in the name of Jesus the Christ. And what about us... Jesus is coming? It is not to the end of time, only to the Spirit in our lives as we are called to witness to the world.

Jesus spoke again and again—of the Spirit, the Spirit, and how to understand Jesus’ call to all of us. And the Word came forth in a spirit of love. And Jesus said we will be scattered and we will leave him alone, leaving him. Though the Father is with him always. I would not remember that we will suffer in the world, but we will have peace for Jesus’ life and death and resurrection that overcome everything.

NGO seeks probe of RP-China biofuel pacts

By TJ Bergamin

A NON-GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION is seeking an inquiry into the investment agreements that the Philippines and China recently signed, particularly those in which involved provisions which were signed by newly registered local companies.

Philips and Chinese officials signed a set of 19 agreements to invest investments valued at $4.5 billion, or $200.5 billion, during Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao's visit to the Philippines in late 2007.

The agreements were among the most significant and far-reaching cooperation between the two countries.

Among those were investments in agriculture, particularly in the biofuel sector, which the companies are developing investment plans.

Dumaguete

The local companies are all registered in Dumaguete, Palawan Bioenergy Development Corp., Baguio Southern Bioprocess Corp., and Cagayan Bioenergy Development Inc., Philippine Bioenergy Technology Group Inc. and Philippine China Bioenergy Development Inc.

But a check with the investors' names of agreements between the two countries showed that at least six of the companies were not registered, or if they were, were newly registered.

"These companies appear to be newly registered, and the investors did not go to the bottom of the matter," former Chairman of Philippine Economic Affairs for Foreign Investment (PEAFI) Francisco L. Llaneta said in a statement.

"They could be very dangerous," Llaneta said. "The names of the companies and the names of the investors should not be used in any way, and the government should not be involved in any way. The companies should not be used in any way, and the government should not be involved in any way."

Llaneta said he would like to see the companies and the investors' names of agreements between the two countries, and the government should not be involved in any way.

would appear in the following: Based on SEC records, Baguio Southern Bioprocess Development Corp. and Philippine Bioenergy Technology Group were not on the list of registered companies of the SEC. On the other hand, Philippine China Bioenergy Development Corp. was on the list of registered companies of the SEC as of June 14, 2008, but the agreements were signed, according to President.

Newly registered

Palawan Bioenergy Development Corp. was registered only in June 4, 2008, and Cagayan Bioenergy Development on July 4, 2008.

Integrated Biofuels Co. and Cagayan Bioenergy signed separate agreements with Philippine Bioenergy Technology Group Co. Ltd. for the manufacture of bioethanol, according to copies of the agreements obtained by this.

Between Bioenergy signed an agreement with China COMEC Co. Ltd. for the manufacture of a bioethanol plant in Palawan while the Cagayan signed a joint venture agreement with Mawing Bioenergy Co. Ltd.

Philippine Bioenergy Technology entered into a joint venture agreement with Mawing Bioenergy Co. Ltd. for the manufacture of a bioethanol plant in Palawan while the Cagayan signed a joint venture agreement with Mawing Bioenergy Co. Ltd.

A local office of Agrarian Reform and Agrarian Services, Inc. (ARSI), said it was not aware of any such agreements, and that it was not aware of any such agreements.

The agreements involve the development of 1 million ha of land for biofuel crops, bioethanol, and bioenergy technology, and other 200,000 ha for agriculture and organic farming, and another 40,000 ha for organic and bioenergy technology.

Skills-based migration to US will hurt Asians

WASHINGTON—Asian immigrants will be displaced under a sweeping US immigration reform plan that would give visa based on skills more than on family connections in the United States.

While the plan would offer a path to citizenship for 12 million undocumented immigrants, it will render the backlog underlying four decades of US immigration policy more or less irrelevant to Asian Americans already in the country.

Congress to consider the bill, which would end the issuance of US permanent resident cards to immigrants who qualify for citizenship, and the issuance of US permanent resident cards to immigrants who qualify for citizenship, and the issuance of US permanent resident cards to immigrants who qualify for citizenship.

Protests mar Comelec count results

LOCAL CANDIDATES IN SOME AREAS IN PANGLASIN, BATAN AND ISABELA ARE QUESTIONING THE RESULTS OF COMELEC ON ELECTION COUNTING, LEADING TO THE FILING OF CHARGES AND POSSIBLE DELAY IN THE PROCLAMATION OF THE WINNERS.

In Pangasinana, the daughter of a candidate for House Representative "Baby" Juan has even to the highly contentious and prolonged race in the third district.

Included Antonio, a candidate of the administration Lakas-CMD party, got a margin of 1,119 votes over his closest opponent, Governor Magabo Jr., one of competing Rep. Antonio Magabo Jr.

"I consider it a terrible victory, despite all the intimidation and harassment my supporters got, despite all the pains and the money," Antonio said.

But a larger of two other opponents, former Deputy Governor Commissioned Officer Antonio Magabo Jr., said the race had been to actually double the results of the counting of votes, particularly in San Carlos City.

In a statement, Dr. Juan, the father of Baby Juan, said the "out of control" actions have caused loss of trust of "honest, vote-buying, point blanketing and bribery of election officers to ensure the victory of the winning candidate."

"We are considering all legal options to stop the race until the voters of the district would be informed and implemented," Juan said.

He said Antonio's legal team had asked the Supreme Court to require to delay the counting and tabulation of the results of the election to the provincial board of canvassers because of alleged voter discrepancies between their tally and the final vote.

Juan said that in Marikina

REMOVAL. EASTERN SAMAR—

"Small but terrible."

This was the incident given by the thousands of supporters and the complete organizational leadership who put in a bid for the election of outgoing Rep. Marcellino Libano to Eastern Samar's 1st congressional district.

Locals, "Ola" Capilla, 55, are provincial senator of the congressional race for the lone district of Eastern Samar since an earthquake of May 15, winning over Congressman Libano's wife, Rita, with a margin of 7,387 votes.

Capilla, who initially ran as an independent but eventually became a candidate of the Partido ng Masa/Philippine Nationalist Alliance (PNP-PNA), said it was a David and Goliath battle.

"It was a very close, emotional fight and the only way to win was to have the support of the people," he said. "Friends and relatives have told us that we are the new face of the province and the only way to win is to have the support of the people."

Capilla was born in 1952 in San Jose, Eastern Samar, but was 100% in the mountains of Samar when he joined the United States Navy in 1970 and stayed in various business enterprises, including a mining firm.

Capilla had regularly been returning to Samar in vacations but it was in the late 1990s, when he and his Filipino-American wife, Rita, moved to the United States, that he began to see the need for a new face in the province.

His wife and son-in-law moved in 1999 but stayed only for a year and four months before he was removed because of questions on his residency. He decided to run for the position. Libano, who was 100% in the mountains of Samar, was 100% in the mountains of Samar.

With no experience and fewer political machines, Capilla was overmatched. A senior congressman who he decided to run against a Libano in the May 14, 2007 election. He only had a few relatives supporters.

In contrast, Rita Libano (Libano) had the backing of the administration being the wife of a three-term congressman who is also the secretary of the department. Libano Christian, Muslim, and other religious groups.

Running under the name of the PNP-PNA, Capilla, despite being a former congressman, lost to Libano's wife, Rita, with a margin of 7,387 votes.

"The segment was made to show the people that we are the only way to win is to have the support of the people."

"When they made the report, election campaign was almost over already," he added.

Capilla said the people who supported him were the people who were not allowed to campaign in the public places in many municipalities.

By a Chinese government spokesman, China's government spokesman said that the people who were not allowed to campaign in the public places in many municipalities.

JOHNS CITY—As expected, incumbent Mayor Rodrigo Orellana won a third term while his daughter and running mate Juan's first shot at politics succeeded.

Reelectionists win QC congressional seats

Losing bet's supporters heckle winner

By Juanito L. Novicio

THE LOCAL OFFICE OF THE Commission on Elections in Quaccon City yesterday proclaimed the winners in the congressional races in the city's four districts.

All the four newly elected representatives were incumbents: "Ginghong" Cinabayo (1st district), Nene Rhea Sison (second district), Marlon Defensor (third district) and Nenecho Garcia-Ibanez (fourth district).

Each one secured a sizable lead over their closest rival for the congressional seats before they were proclaimed the winners at 2 a.m. yesterday by the COMELEC.

Immediately after she was declared the winning Sison announced under 30 supporters of her rival, former "Chico" Mabini III, outside the City Hall across hall where the celebrating winners were being held.

According to members of the Quaccon City Hall police, Sison was making her way to her car when a group of people, who they believed were Mabini supporters, heckled her.

Chavez seeks Pope's apology for offending native peoples

Catholics say
blog spreads
BBC 'slander'

ROME—THEY'RE SAYING ROMAN CATHOLIC newspaper lashed out at bloggers at Vatican for spreading "slander" by posting a BBC documentary that alleged it had covered up of child sexual abuse.

The documentary aired on the BBC in Great Britain, but never to Italy. The bloggers translated it and it went online on Google Video. Italy's newspaper people 45 most popular item.

"We did the greatest work of translating and editing it to tell this shameful story," they wrote on news websites.

Newspaper Avvenire, which is owned by the Italian Government of Roman Catholic bishops, slammed the web version as a "baseless attack of slander."

The BBC documentary mentioned what it said was a 1994 document in which the Vatican set out a procedure for dealing with child sexual abuse within the Church.

It imposed an oath of secrecy on the child rapists, the priest and any witness, a policy the BBC documentary said was meant to protect the priest's reputation during the investigation but have often a blanket for cover-up.

Avvenire called the documentary "a proposal of defamation and gender-hatred" due to the use of "publicly expounded" for being false and misleading.

The Roman Catholic Church has been hit in several countries, including the United States and Ireland, by lawsuits and charges of sex abuse by priests.

British bishops last year criticized the BBC, saying it should be "admitted of the standard of the journalism used to create this sensational attack on Pope Benedict." history

CARACAS—PRESIDENT HUGO CHAVEZ SOUGHT BENEDECT XVI's apology for offending native peoples during the Pope's recent attempt to reach out to Latin American Roman Catholics.

"He asked about the people of our Americas," and Chavez, speaking last Friday, "I believed in the right thing to do."

Benedict III made quite an impression on his first visit to Latin America, home to more than half of his flock, when he said last week that "Christianity was not imposed by a foreign culture." Chavez was the latter (Chavez's) national identity praised by the Pope in his visit.

Benedict also called a recent meeting of pro-Columbian citizens "a step backward," drawing criticism from native groups in his country.

Referring to Ecuador also questioned Benedict's version of events.

"Surely, the Pope does not know the representations of the Catholic Church of those times, with honorable men, some assassins, doctors and beneficiaries of one of the most heroic periods of all humanity," the cardinal master of Indigenous Nations said in a statement.

The Pope's comments were still on Chavez's mind last Friday. "There could you say they came—when they came with weapons (Benedict's) to conquer—with a sense of superiority?"

The conquest of Latin America by Europeans "was something far greater than the Holocaust in the Second World War and no one can deny it, not even your Holiness can deny the Holocaust of the millions of our land."

"Chavez asked much later to America, he did not arrive with Christianity," Chavez said, "but with the spirit of the new Christ," said Chavez, whose speeches frequently rely on Christian teachings and biblical metaphors.

Chavez has met twice with Benedict, in May 2006.

Loan documentation simplified

THE BANGKO SENTRAL NG PILIPINAS HAS EASED some credit rules to boost the flow of funds to agriculture and microfinance, or lending to the entrepreneurial poor.

In a briefing Friday, BSP Governor Amanda Tinogon Jr. said new measures were recently adopted by the banking regulator to encourage lending to agriculture and microfinance, or lending to the entrepreneurial poor.

"What we're doing is ensure that agricultural loans are not misused, and that they are used for the intended purpose," he said.

The BSP allows several alternative modes of compliance to the 140 monetary lending, such as the use of "guaranteed" collateral, credit lines, and other financial instruments.

Bangko Setral expected to scrap tiering system

Bank lending hoped to grow by 12-14% yearly

By Derek C. Domingo

THE BANGKO SENTRAL, the Philippine central bank, is expected to scrap the existing ceiling on short-term money market bank lending growth targets for 12-14 percent a year, according to officials.

The official said the BSP would likely move to a more spread in bank lending growth, but not lifting the ceiling system. Under the system, the BSP publishes rates for short-term money market bank lending in terms of various thresholds. It was expected to encourage banks to lend more instead of putting off their lending to the BSP.

"When lending growth hits 12-14 percent, we can remove the ceiling system," the BSP official said. Bank lending in the country expanded by 5.5 percent in P1.96 billion in March over a year ago due to an improving business climate and the recovery of the foreign sector.

This was higher than February's

7.3 percent growth. However, the BSP earlier said this growth was not commensurate with the 27-30 percent increase in the country's savings rate.

The BSP clearly mentions trend and underlying factors to ensure that the growth of credit is consistent with prudence.

Since Nov. 2, the BSP has offered under the ceiling system an interest rate of 7.5 percent on the first P50 billion of overnight borrowing from a bank, 3.5 percent on placements in excess of P50 billion up to P100 billion, and 3.5 percent for anything greater than P100 billion.

Despite the lending industry's liquidity, lending levels remained below desired levels.

To keep up the money market pumped into the local financial system by strong foreign inflows, the BSP has made its special deposit account (SDA) facility a more powerful monetary tool.

Under the SDA, banks can place funds with the BSP and earn a return interest rate depending on the terms of the placement, such as automatic placements or not.

During the April monetary policy meeting, the Monetary Board of Bangko Sentral said the department to cap the SDA based by the BSP to within the rate of the cost, allowed banks to use SDA as compliance in the 30 percent liquidity limit on the portion of deposits and deposit collections required to be held in the form of negotiable and transferable government securities in a buffer in case of a bank run or heavy withdrawal, and of bank government-owned and -controlled corporations and financial institutions to place funds directly with the BSP.

Like the overnight borrowing, the SDA are covered by a tiering system, which means interest rates paid by the BSP decline in some of certain periods.

Concerns seen to dash RP hope for rating upgrade

By Doris C. Quinsac

MANILA (ENR) — RATING AGENCY Moody's will be weighing concerns on the country's stability and sustainability of the Philippine government, which hopes for a rating upgrade at this time.

In a statement Friday night, Moody's said another Agency Bureau also noted that key data were critical to "considerable higher level of vulnerability to economic shocks or negative policy changes" or against steadily rising assessments.

In the end, Moody's concluded to "BBB-07" foreign currency and "BBB-07" local currency coverage credit ratings on the Philippines, with stable outlook. The ratings on these matters below the market assessed investment grade.

Moody said the stable outlook reflects a balance between the government's fiscal health and public sector's growing external debt to investor and deficit impact in light of macroeconomic efficiency.

But he said the outlook could be revised to "positive" if additional revenue measures would be implemented, or, including the passage to Congress of existing fiscal initiatives that can increase or build the legislation.

A "positive" outlook indicates a strong probability of a credit rating upgrade over the next 12 to 24 months.

Generally, Moody's warned that the outlook on the ratings could again come under pressure if fiscal conditions are endangered by sudden events, including the government's budgetary and credit conditions.

"Considerable progress has been attained by the current administration in addressing the country's economic challenges," Moody's said. After the implementation of the last budget, income tax rates, the government's revenue collection has increased to 15.2 percent of gross domestic product from 14.1 percent in 2004.

Moody's said that the government's deficit has declined significantly from a peak of 14.3 percent of GDP in 2005 to 1.1 percent in 2006.

Moody's said that despite solid revenue growth, the government's revenue collection is still below the performance level of the last budget.

CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER AND managing partner of Maps Jr. of Lane 8800 Manila will give a talk at the forthcoming Philippine Marketing Association (PMA) convention in Manila.

"The main point of a new breed of consumers have not only been seen," he says. "It is a new breed. He has to challenge traditional norms and mould rather than new ones. He believes 'the future belongs to those who dare to be first.' That means to be the most of his marketing strategy in the future arena of marketing and advertising."

As for college graduates go, I want to see the stars in an arena with many without any training. (Quite candidly) I discovered the job was not cut for me. I then moved to the People's Journal and the Manila newspaper as well, representing for both publications," Maps said.

Later on, Maps made a bold decision to work on advertising at the Globe office of Ogilvy and Mather. But as many marketers go through, Maps has many setbacks again and returned to Manila to lead the first stage of the new Internet Group and Magazine, 8800 C. Golden Cross Advertising, at Super Thrift, Maps introduced. Maps has, the first successful new venture in the market at that time.

Wishing to have the new integrated marketing communications discipline, Maps joined PMA agency Agency Associates Inc. where he got extensive training in marketing 18 from Charlie Agency, acknowledged as one of the pillars of PMA in the Philippines.

Having acquired a wealth of skills in marketing, Maps went with Agency Associates. Maps left for now ready for the big time. He joined Lane 8800 Manila as the company's first client service director.

For the next 18 years, Maps has been part of the Lane 8800 Worldwide network, being also part of the Singapore as franchisee from regional network & network for John Maps, with clients including the Volvo, Philips and Peugeot accounts.

But in Manila, Maps had to prove a little. PMA's Lane 8800 team that was cited by PMA Asia Australia and India in 2003 for "outstanding ad writing and communications that resulted last volume share to its parent in just 18 months." The Lane 8800 team was also recognized by PMA Asia Global Business Club as "the best team in the world last year."

"I also conducted primary research on consumers for various industries—Industries, Thailand and Manila for PMA last, being for John Maps and South America for the Philippines Department of Tourism (DOT), Maps said.

Today, Maps has taken on a bigger and bolder challenge, leading Lane 8800 8800 Manila as its client operating office. The Manila office is an affiliate of Lane 8800 Worldwide, based in the 2006 Global Agency Network of the Year by the prestigious professional advertising agency, and the 8800 largest advertising agency network in the world, with 223 agencies in 75 countries.

Maps claims that helping clients market their products in today's era of digital marketing poses a great deal of challenge, especially with the emergence of products. "The main challenge is to be the most of the digital technology of today," he explains. "As consumers get exposed to information through these new digital technologies like the Internet and mobile phones, they are more aware of marketing services."

According to Maps, unlike previous times when consumers who relied on traditional means of communication, consumers are the Internet and mobile technology in such information on various products and services. The process does not end upon the acquisition of new technology.

"Consumers pose significant challenges in modern business. The digital landscape is actively shared and distributed to others. These consumers have a different perspective on marketing and they are ready to tell if a brand is doing them or not," Maps explained.

The new breed of discriminating buyers and users are also made or linked a product or brand. "Consumers are the first to embrace technology and the next to be the first," Maps pointed out. "They are the ones who are not looking at the back of every product label."

During a visit with Lane 8800 Singapore, Maps and his team members relied on the results of a consumer research they conducted in leading the "DO 343" campaign for Asia Pacific Brewery which became Lane 8800 Asia Pacific's most awarded multi-media campaign. "Based on the results of the consumer survey, we developed multi-media games, website, chat messaging service (SMS) as well as engaged news and personalized in a younger market which Asia Pacific Brewery wanted to reach."

The claim that Maps's Lane 8800 Manila has also done successful communications projects for Indonesia, the Department of Tourism and the Philippine Daily Inquirer, all produced its consumer research results. These include Inquirer, the first multimedia survey game in the Philippines, and the "Philippines Explorer, Experience, Immerse" website, the first online magazine of 8800. Maps stresses marketing professionals should be wary of the practices of consumers if they want to make their products successful globally through digital marketing. Maps and Lane 8800 Worldwide has already conducted a global consumer research which is well-known to members of the PMA at the 38th National Marketing Conference, May 23-24, 2007, Hotel Sofitel Philippine Plaza, Pasay City.

Maps will also have leading and multi-faceted marketing professionals can decipher the characteristics of a product and how they can apply this new knowledge in developing successful marketing programs.

he used for the balls came from Wimbledon, with the balance sourced from Indonesia, he says.

"It's in the Philippines, so we want to sell work with Philippine companies. We're very committed to the Philippine economy. As much as we can, we get local materials," he says.

In working with the Indonesian rubber producers, he says the company is not only helping the local rubber industry by getting its rubber supply from here, but is also enabling the rubber manufacturers to better compete in the world market.

"When we started using Philippine rubber three years ago, we also started to attract its manufacturers by telling them what kind of rubber we need. We also train, let our facilities from the international market so that they can be more competitive, both in the cost and technical aspects," he says.

Fuel

Maps says the company is now trying to make its operations more efficient, its operations for environmental reasons.

"We're trying to improve the condition of our older machines. We're also buying machines that consume less power so we can cut costs," he says. "We hope to get more and more from the market. There's still room for a rapidly increase. We want to supply all the best facilities."

Last year, says, during the Wimbledon in Manila used the multi-layered PMA 8800 high-pressure die that the balls being used in the world's oldest tennis tournament are being manufactured right here in the Philippines.

Wimbledon has reason to be proud that the tennis balls used in Wimbledon are manufactured here in the Philippines. "We had to be a sports."

Adding that the way things are going, the next day will be the one for the next year to come.

Samsung's latest products deliver purer living

By Jo Anne L. Padolina

IT WAS THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE POLICY and commitment to human health that led to the Samsung.

This policy led Samsung to introduce in 2004 its silver nano technology—technology that enables the use of particles to sterilize and disinfect in domestic product lines.

And it was that same policy that enabled the South Korean conglomerate to use its top-of-the-line appliances line.

"Our goal is to become the number one refrigerator and washing machine brand in the region by 2007," said Andy Kwon, Samsung product manager for home appliances, during the Samsung Digital Home Application Conference 2007 recently.

New line of appliances

After Samsung introduced its silver nano health system across all product ranges—home refrigerators, air conditioners and washing machines, in addition to plasma and microwave ovens, the company continues to think of other ways to provide consumers with a pure living experience.

Recently Samsung unveiled its new line of home appliances, all of which feature silver nano health system combined with the nano-technology.

The Samsung Quantum Cooling Compressor Refrigerator, its flagship product, has four separate and distinct compartments of frozen and frozen, with each compartment sealed by its own separate double door, preventing the mixing of odors and elimination of bad odor throughout the entire refrigerator. This way, the original flavor of foods is retained.

Guaranteed fresh

Also, each separate compartment has a humidity level that stays higher than other conventional models. This guarantees the freshness of food, Kwon said.

The WD-6100, Samsung's top-range washing machine, features the world's first air wash system that removes unpleasant odors, microscopic allergens, harmful bacteria and microbes through the water's hot air and physical strength.

"This product is very good for babies and older people and has silver skin," Kwon said, explaining that the machine eliminates 99.9 percent of germs and prevents bacteria for up to 30 days.

Samsung's AS-0900, its flag ship air-conditioner, is suitable for its cutting-edge technology and innovative, innovative-looking design. It has the world's first nano-plasma air (NPA) technology which generates silver hydrogen atoms together with oxygen ions.

The NPA device generates 100,000 ions in average per day. Compared to other brands, Samsung's NPA has the highest air virus removal rate at 99.9 percent, according to Kwon.

"NPA eliminates harmful germs by removing SARS-associated virus rates and also reduces air virus, which has the same particle structure as the virus in influenza."

Samsung air conditioner has a good sleep mode, a temperature control program which, based on the study conducted by the National Radiology University in Korea, allows a person to have 12 percent longer sleep sleep hours (12.2 hours) more compared to 57 minutes using other brands. It also benefits one's health because the good sleep mode maintains comfortable temperature throughout the night through precise temperature control.

The air conditioner does not increase air noise levels. Its energy consumption is reduced by as much as 33 percent, compared to other models in the market, even in mid.

SA-20000 is a built-in refrigerator with quality cooling system.

"Our strategy this year is to compete our premium segment into products which the market can fully enjoy," Kwon said. "We are expanding our product lineup to cater to every consumer."

Global perspective

"Right now, we would also like to offer Samsung to those who want to promote their products."

Other products offered by Samsung include W-SMART TV, a refrigerator with indoor time, 10.1-inch washing machine with silver nano-technology and AS-1200 split-type air-conditioner with good sleep mode.

Samsung, which lives up with its nano perspective that "a brand is created by its consumers," continues to develop products that will cater to the middle-class local market.

Through local group distribution with dealers and retailers, Samsung hopes to improve its application of silver nano technology in its products.

It also aims to apply the technology in basic products, and services.

"In air conditioners before, for example, we only apply the silver nano particles at two in the filter. But last year, we also coated our compressors with silver ions to better protect consumers."

Kwon also said that, before, only the high-end products used to contain the silver nano health system.

But now he added, that feature may be found in all their mid-range products.

THE TOP range washing machine, WD-6100, features the first air wash technology.

Lindslee's animal farm

The other works are pure mixed-media abstraction that builds on Lindslee's old strengths in composition, color contrast and scale.

By Lisa B. Zubanu

THE ABSTRACTION OF LINDSLEE takes a frequent turn as a metaphoric one that is, very literally, "business," opening the door to "The Dining Room." The show consists of Lindslee's painted works, but this time, the media is not only of paint and using that also of sculpture and modeling. The last is a more development in Lindslee's art, providing a counterpoint and sculpture to the abstraction.

In the traditional sense, artists are placed in certain circumstances that tend to develop the human situation. In the installation "Sleep for Sale," a man-made chair sits on a white pillow that rests on a dark-colored board or platform. The final's uniqueness is broken by a piece of Lindslee's usual industrial colors, but instead are added in some parts, with a few quilt-like features across board.

The substance may refer to the history of cinema. There may be described portraits as a light bulb (even) while the colors are not just the darkness of the.

So why should sleep be for sale? Perhaps because in the busy-busy of modern-day existence, with its deadlines and stress, sleep may yet be the most commodity the most valuable.

The piece's display is intended to suggest a "Pork Chop Explosion," in which a pig stands above a painting of Lindslee's with some of the colors on its body, most, likely red and black. The gesture of the artist is to represent the body of the painting, the final is a piggy-back-on-the-table.

Industrial critique
But to extend the industrial critique and the metaphor on domesticated animals, the artist may be saying the art business has made more of some cities, turning them into the high end of the industry, but not realizing they have been domesticated by the market.

In this sense, the wild colors of the Pigs are, for example, do not really contribute to the definition of established economic but in expression, they are becoming the wild, but not becoming the wild.

The critique seems to have been suggested as "Chicken Art" in which a chick stands in the middle of a round table on a piece, its body painted down to the right end of the painting where there's a sculpture of a chicken.

The title reminds the art of the last heart and the small-minded, embodied by the pig-like that is usually mind state and behavior in the industry. However, if it comes, the flow of the art may be the "Chicken Art" itself, an artistic convention and being used that the art is not only a piece but a chicken.

The other work is a piece titled "Chicken Art" that is a piece of Lindslee's old strength in composition, color contrast and scale. The sculpture is a chicken, 400 or 500 ft, some of the works are called "Industrial," or it is to complement the traditional and industrial paintings.

Targeted figures

The addition of targeted figures in the art work is a metaphor for the artist's intention, that the artist is not only a piece but a chicken, but the artist is not only a piece but a chicken, but the artist is not only a piece but a chicken.

Looking to extend a piece of art, the artist is not only a piece but a chicken, but the artist is not only a piece but a chicken, but the artist is not only a piece but a chicken.

Together with other artists, Lindslee's art is not only a piece but a chicken, but the artist is not only a piece but a chicken, but the artist is not only a piece but a chicken.

Lindslee's "Sleep for Sale" runs May 26, 4-8 PM, at the Dining Room, 1000 Philippine Ave., Makati City. It runs until June 16, call 887-7777 for information.
